Set an Example

(Tim 1 4:12)

Workplace Christians often find themselves facing the challenge of integrating their faith into their work-a-day world, even as1 Timothy 4:12 calls upon us to become examples in speech, conduct, love, faith and purity.

Be an example in speech. Words can deliver a positive or a negative impact in our interactions with colleagues, clients, or supervisors. Christians at the workplace should influence others by speaking with integrity and sincerity. First, do not resort to negative comments, or spread gossip or criticize others, but engage with colleagues in an encouraging and constructive manner instead. At the same time, convey positive messages, be an encouraging voice within the team and share constructive insights and solutions frequently rather than stop short and just pointing to the problems.

Be an example in conduct. The workplace is not just a place to carry out our duty, it's also an opportunity to demonstrate our faith. We can influence others by what we do, as we show the love of Christ. Reach out and offer assistance proactively when our colleagues are in need of support. At the same time, we are to maintain integrity in our work, and do not compromise on ethical behaviour even when faced with pressure or conflicts of interest.

Be an example in love. Showing love can be challenging in a competitive workplace. However, we can bring warmth and care to others through our actions. It would be good for workplace Christians to pay closer attention to their colleagues, and offer support to those under stress or feeling down by lending their ears to their concerns. At the same time, they can promote collaboration and mutual assistance within the team, fostering a friendly team culture and reducing competition and conflict.

Be an example model in faith. We should learn to entrust our problems to God immediately when facing difficulties and challenges in the workplace and share testimonies of our faith with colleagues in a timely manner, so that they can see God's work in our lives.

Be an example of Integrity. Maintaining personal moral and ethical integrity is especially supreme in the workplace. Christian workers need to adhere to the moral standards set by the Bible throughout their careers, avoiding involvement in bribery, fraudulent practices or unfair competition. They should also avoid forming inappropriate relationships with colleagues, superiors, or clients, but are to consistently demonstrate exemplary integrity in the workplace instead.

Global REACHOUT strives to help Christians live out their faith in the workplace, practicing the teachings of 1 Timothy 4:12 through various types of workplace programs by way of words, deeds, love, faith and integrity, as they bring the love and truth of Christ into the work environment. May God preserve our hearts and help us work together to be the light and salt of the earth.

Audience Feedback

Passing Down of Faith Begins at Home

It is indeed challenging to assist our neighbours in our indifferent society these days. I am grateful for the reminders in the programme to be zealous in serving others, because the Lord came not to be served by others but to serve them.

(Brother Wang, China, 09/09/2024)

Wise Guidance for Youths

Thank you for this episode! As a parent of a teenager myself, I know there are indeed many sensitive issues to be mindful of. As parents, we need to be considerate of our children's feelings in what we say, for fear of endless nagging leading up to negative consequences. No parent should miss this episode 07, and we should learn from it with a humble heart.

(Brother He, China, 08/09/2024

A Vibrant Life

It was mentioned in one episode that everyone will have to face the loss of loved ones eventually. Indeed, we also need to take up the responsibility of caring for our family members as time moves on. Hence, we need to adjust our inner selves and transform our love for them into courage to face the challenges during our lives in such poignant moments.
